

I have a dream that one day people won't be judged by the color of their skin, but by their state of mind.

I have a dream that gender equality will be achieved, where women and men are treated with equal respect and opportunities in all aspects of life.

I have a dream that everyone, no matter how much money they have, can get a good education, healthcare, and the things they need to live a good life.

I have a dream that people of all sexual orientations and gender identities will live freely without fear of discrimination.

This is my hope: that every person, regardless of race, ethnicity, religion, or belief, will be valued and respected for their human qualities.

With this faith, we will work hard to make a world where everyone feels welcome and valued, no matter who they are, where everyone has the same chances in life.

And if we all come together and support each other, we can make this dream a reality, creating a future where everyone is treated fairly and with respect.
